

New metal-eating plant discovered in the Philippines

Researchers from the University of the Philippines, Los Banos, have discovered a new plant species that accumulates enormous amounts of nickel. Hyperaccumulators are plants capable of growing in soils with high concentrations of metals, extracting these metals through their roots and storing them in their tissues without being poisoned.